The Iron Law of Costs

As an illustration of the exclusiveness of caste, which a native of India will do almost anything to preserve, it might be mentioned that when money passes between a low caste and a higher caste man the coin is thrown on the ground by the one and picked up by the other for fear of defilement. They may not stand on the same carpet or enter the same room. Neither must the low caste man cross the threshold of his superior's house or hut. If he wants to communicate with him he stands outside and bawls.

Action of a Heel-Skipping Counter

What good are these Foot-rite ball and socket counters? 'They're this good. Their soft leather won't skin the heel, even though it may rub at every up and down movement, but that up and down rubbing is entirely eliminated by the ball and socket suction which forces the sole under the heel, also the counter at the back and sides, to hug the heel snugly as it lifts and lowers in walking. This suction is not noticeable. Like the shoulder joint it performs its office without being felt.

Action of a Foot-rite Heel Comforting Counter

Don't know what is meant by a shoe counter? Well, it's the stiff leather that fits around the heel. It's the back stop of the shoe. It forms a leather cavity into which the heel fits. If wrongly built that cavity can inflict more agony than any other section of a shoe. In nearly all shoes it's given little or no care. It's usually constructed of Hemlock tanned, scrap sole leather, hard and stiff as stone, and is licked together in the cheapest way without shape or form. Result? A rigid, unbudgable, heel-skinning, pain-producing, walk-hindering counter.

Foot-rite counters are somewhat different—slightly. They're made of special oak-tanned counter stock, stout but soft, and being shaped the exact shape of a human heel, they are heel sockets, and when the heel ball fills them, they're practically ball and socket joints like the human shoulder, capable of moving in any direction and bound together by air suction.

There's a Foot-rite dealer in your town. His name's below. Ask him to show you Foot-rite Heel Comforting Counters. You'll find his door swinging inward but never outward to find a more welcome store.

Anywhere in America, Canada or Great Britain—$4.00 and $5.00. Every pair Goodyear Welted.
